

The Antarctic ocean is freezing cold,
It has the freshest water, so we've been told.

The starfish live below the waves,

The red sea sparkles like red glitter.
The bubbles shine like fire and the starfish gleam like coins.

The humpback whales race towards the calm Indian ocean.

The bright blue waves shine like stars and the seaweed is as green as grass.

Take me to the Atlantic Ocean,
Swim with the stingrays,
As they create a commotion!

Deep, deep down among the weeds,
I can see sharks and dolphins,
As they suddenly flee!

See the stingrays flap
their giant wings
don't get too close as,
they have a mighty swing!

The pacific ocean is big and wide,
with beautiful places for creatures to hide.
The smooth, blue water is relaxing and warm, Except when the cold water crash in around the storms.

Translucent, peaceful water rippled in the wind,
Calm waves, beautiful fish and sharks hat grin.
The scary octopus uses his long tentacles
