

Lots of animals playing from a shark to a crab; no animals are safe from the deadly grab.
Starfish laying, happily still; starfish perishing, sadly ill.
Scared fish stuck in bottles, instead of free-roaming life; we must stop this damage and terrible strife!

Animals happily playing together; animals wrapped in bags and paper.
Beautiful crabs, clapping rhymes; angry crabs snapping plastic binds.
Rainbow coloured bubbles gracefully floating high; this magical place is being destroyed – we cannot lie!

Happy animals living in the ocean; dying every day from a toxic potion.
Gentle waves crashing, against the shore; disgusting, dirty oil covers the ocean floor.
You need to stop littering land and sea; please, please, please, please, please, please, please!

And when dirty dangerous litter comes, the oily sea becomes grim.
Ocean oh ocean, you smell like lotion,
Just a touch of potion to give a little motion.

I once saw a shiny cruel crab, but it was quickly munching my crusty slimy kebab.

Painfully laying on a sandy dirty beach,
were lots of animals including a leech.

I once found a poorly fish,
who was in desperate need of a lucky wish.

If we don't protect the beautiful peaceful ocean,
it will turn into a disgusting poisonous potion.
